

【Shenzhen】 Explore innovative culinary ideas
A perfect fusion of western fine dining and northeastern cuisine!

“Chinese Dishes in Western Style” is the latest trend in the culinary world. Located in OCT-LOFT, “MAGPIE” reinterprets the hearty and authentic Northeastern home-style cuisine with a Western twist. Even with little promotion, it has gained popularity as an internet-famous dining spot, buzzing with lively online discussion despite being situated next to an entertainment area, proving its unique charm.

Chef Cadence Gao, the founder of MAGPIE, is a Chinese Canadian with ancestral roots in Northeastern China. Passionate about cooking and highly professional, he has garnered a massive fanbase through his own social media channel. Many diners visited MAGPIE out of admiration for his fame. — and for its cozy atmosphere, perfect for relaxed gatherings with close friends. Cadence’s unique background, blending both Eastern and Western influences, has inspired his innovative culinary ideas that have set the restaurant apart by presenting Northeastern cuisine in the refined style of Western fine dining.

The restaurant’s dishes also reflect his thoughtfulness, with options like Fried Pork in Scoop, Summer Lamb , Just some tomatoes, and “Xita by Dunhua”... some are self-explanatory, while others leave diners wondering.

The classic Northeastern home-style dish, Disanxian, is made with three traditional ingredients including potatoes, aubergine, and green pepper. While retaining their familiar flavours, the presentation completely overturns traditional expectations. The potatoes are roasted to a crisp outer layer with a soft, tender centre, and the garlic aubergine purée is paired with a spicy sauce, delivering a tantalising twist.

The restaurant preserves the essence of the dishes while giving them a fresh new look, offering diners a delightful surprise both in taste and visual experience. This has fostered an atmosphere where diners eagerly anticipate the “reveal” of each dish, adding an element of excitement that has become a beloved part of the dining experience.
