

MTR Service Hours Arrangement

Multiple MTR stations have been maliciously vandalised repeatedly. With the concerted efforts of MTR staff, repair works at stations have made good progress. We have been closely monitoring any risk of further attack on railway facilities and noted that the risk level on weekdays has lowered. Having regard to the progress of repair works and the latest risk assessment with relevant government departments, all MTR lines (except Airport Express), Light Rail and MTR Bus will be providing service until 11:30 pm on all weekdays next week from Monday to Friday (11-15 November).

However, as the risk level on weekends is still relatively higher than weekdays, the service will continue to end at 10pm next Saturday and Sunday (16 and 17 November).

As the arrangement for early closure of railway lines may need to be maintained for a period of time depending on the actual situation, the Corporation hopes this advanced announcement of service hours for the coming seven days can facilitate passengers in their journey planning.

The Corporation will continue to monitor the latest risk level and carry out risk assessment with relevant government departments. The Corporation may shorten the service hours if the risk level increases or station facilities are damaged again. In the event that train or station service has to be adjusted, the Corporation will disseminate the relevant information via the MTR website, MTR Mobile, station and in-train announcements as well as the media. Passengers are advised to pay attention to the latest service information.
